Inmarsat investors also participate in ICO as investor-partners, wholesalers and syndicated partners.<sup>14</sup>

As an entity managerially and structurally independent of Inmarsat, ICO enjoys no governmental privileges, immunities or other advantages of any kind.<sup>15</sup> An examination of the MSS experience so far demonstrates that ICO's competitors have had as much success as ICO in securing service agreements and strong partners in international markets.<sup>16</sup>

In addition to achieving structural and managerial independence from Inmarsat and its members, ICO has worked closely with the United States government to obviate any concerns about potential, anticompetitive advantages arising from ICO's origins in an Inmarsat project. Notably, in May of 1996, in connection with the COMSAT procurement application, ICO's board voted to incorporate in ICO's organic documents the Inmarsat Principles as requested by the United States Executive Branch. The Inmarsat Principles

<sup>14</sup> NEC, along with a consortium of companies that includes Hughes Network Systems and Ericsson, also will deliver ICO's ground systems equipment under a contract estimated at approximately $500 million. Hughes joined ICO in 1995 as a strategic partner and has a $2.3 billion contract to build and launch ICO's space segment. In addition, ICO is likely to broaden its ownership structure through various means, including an initial public offering.

<sup>15</sup> In most of the large countries or groups of countries where ICO will operate, including China, the European Union, India and Russia, the entity that will make the regulatory decisions concerning market access is entirely separate from the operational entities that are ICO investors. As a result, ICO expects to compete vigorously, on an equal footing with its competitors, to secure the full range of licenses and service provider relationships needed to provide global MSS service.

<sup>16</sup> In fact, Edward Staiano, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Iridium, recently was asked whether "obtaining licensing and regulatory approval have been more difficult than [Iridium] expected." Mr. Staiano replied that "[n]o one has shut the door on us. In some areas the process has been more cumbersome and it's taken longer, [but] [w]e've also had some very pleasant surprises." Space News, Sept. 1-7, 1997.
